Long Gallery and Inner Courtyard

Located on the ground floor of the Hall the Inner Long Gallery and Inner Courtyard are perfect for private events.

One of the most surprising and contemporary spaces in the Hall the Inner Courtyard was originally the Hall's kitchen courtyard. With white walls, interior windows, glass doors and a modern glass roof allowing in plentiful natural daylight the Inner Courtyard is a delightful space for drinks receptions and serving area for private functions.

The adjacent Long Gallery is an unusual space boasting brick walls, high windows and ceiling beams – giving a quirky and country feel to the room. With ample lighting the space is ideal for your specific requirements and perfect for wakes and memorial gatherings.

The Great Hall and Parlour

Located on the ground floor of the Hall, the Great Hall is one of the most opulent and highly decorated of the rooms boasting an exquisite fireplace as its focal point. In the 1600s guests would have been received in the Great Hall and its sole purpose was to impress – a tradition that continues today. With rich wooden panelling, Jacobean-style ceilings and large bay windows offering exquisite views across the estate the Great Hall is perfect for your special day. The Parlour is the most seventeenth century room in the Hall boasting original panelling and a fireplace. Sympathetically restored the room is both warm and welcoming, with plenty of natural daylight and stunning views of the Cedar of Lebanon tree in the grounds.

The Great Hall and the Parlour are hired jointly offering access to the east patio, perfect for views of the magnificent cedar tree and outside space in pleasant weather.
